DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 6-23 withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a non-elected, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 8

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Atkins. Atkins discloses a surge protection (see fig. 2) comprises a voltage input (terminal input1) connected to the electrical power line; an inductor (4), a resistor (8), and a polymeric positive temperature coefficient device (6) coupled in series between the voltage input and the load.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Atkins (USPN 5,513,059) in view of Curry (USPN 6,266,223). Atkins discloses that a surge protection (see fig. 2) apparatus connected between a power source and a load comprises a voltage input (1) connected to the electrical power line; an inductor (4) connected between the voltage input line and the load (shown in fig. 2); a polymeric positive temperature coefficient (6) coupled between the voltage input and the load. Atkins does not disclose a protective barrier interposed between both the inductor and the polymeric positive temperature coefficient from the load, the protective barrier physically isolates the inductor from the load. Curry discloses a protective barrier (212) interposed between both the inductor and the polymeric positive temperature coefficient from the load, the protective barrier physically isolates the inductor from the load. It would have been obvious to one having skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the circuit of Atkins with the protective barrier as taught by Curry in order to isolate the circuit components being damaged from arcing.
